What is Freecodecamp? FreeCodeCamp is a free, community-run, nonprofit code-school where anyone can learn to build a startup. Complete. and not having to learn how to create websites. This is just what I thought I needed. The spirit of FreeCodeCamp is to cultivate interest and excitement around computer science and coding. Our community is free to join, and each of our 2,000+ members have built incredible things. Whether you are just starting to code or you are an expert, we have a great mission for you. Come join us! Can I come in? We've built our new Berkeley Campus on the principles of openness and inclusion. As a result, we're pretty open as well. You can come in! Here's how it works: Sign Up Coding is hard. Computer science is hard. Code schools are hard. FreeCodeCamp is not. Go to freecodecamp.com/signup to get started. Create a Profile Choose a username and set your profile picture. Start Coding Watch this short video on how to get started and follow the lessons. Pro-tip: If you're more of a visual learner, download the curriculum-guided walkthrough videos for all our courses. Coding with friends and colleagues You can interact with other coders through our workspace at freecodecamp.com/workspaces. This is where you'll find everything from our Coding Challenges to our peer-reviewed Code of Conduct. Pay It Forward Join our mission to create an inclusive community of creators by contributing to open source projects. Our mission Our mission is to contribute to society by educating and empowering everyone to develop digital skills, build life-changing products, and make the world more tech-enabled. Our students We have more than 2,000 students in over 90 countries, and they've built amazing things. These are a few of our students who have been inspired to turn their coding skills into something real:

Leadership Who is behind FreeCodeCamp? I'm two sisters who were really interested in coding. It was really fun to try it. But then I wanted to give back to the community and help others. After our sister graduated college, we both realized that not everyone has the same opportunities. So we decided to form
