Q: Display output of a shell command in a vim command-line window

I'm trying to run a shell command in my vim script and I am trying to get the output of that shell command in a separate window. I have this in my.vimrc: `command! -bang -nargs=* -complete=dir CustomTestToOutput call test.bat customcmd "C:\dev\test.bat {}"` This works fine for the single parameter - but how do I get the output of the command rather than just the stdout?

A: i would write a lua lua file to return the output function `GetOutput( cmd )`

local line = os.execute(cmd)
local line_array = {} for line_array_index, line in ipairs( line ) do table.insert(line_array, line)
end
return table.con

“An epic drama in which the various thoughts of the characters intersect in the Lands Between. As the characters within the fiction of Elden Ring encounter their fate, they will stand in conflict with each other. The end result of this conflict will be decided in the Lands Between. When you decide what kind of path you wish to take as an Elden Lord, you will know whether you will unite or crumble in the twilight of conflict.” - Game Review on the Elden Ring official site (2017-07-29) “An epic drama whose fascinating myth revolves around the Elden Ring. I want to thank you for making an amazing work.” - Producer Yūji Oda on the Elden Ring official site (2017-07-30) “Elden Ring is a fantasy action RPG created with a completely new concept. I am very proud of the fact that I was able to use my abilities and knowledge to create it. Elden Ring is a work that was originally created by Fates, and we have used our respective abilities and perspectives to develop it.” - Producer Keiichi Yano on the Elden Ring official site (2017-09-07) “Elden Ring is a new fantasy that combines action RPG with an epic drama. It was created with the aim of becoming a game that would be enjoyed by fans of other Fates games, including myself. We have created a game where even if you are a new player, there is a variety of content so that even if you only play the game once, it will be enjoyable.” - Producer Keiichi Yano on the Elden Ring official site (2017-12-18) “Elden Ring is a fantasy action RPG that emphasizes the fantasy aspect and action. It is a game where even the characters start with different backgrounds and skills, and it was designed with the aim of enabling you to enjoy your own choices.” - Producer Yūji Oda on the Elden Ring official site (2017-06-21) Brought to you by: Keiichi Yano, Producer Yūji Oda, Program Director Keiichi Yokawa, Creative Director Yasuo Yamada, Development Team Head Enoki Shimada, Chief Technical Advisor

What's new:

Lords of the Fallen 2* is the first next-gen title developed by Czech games developer Deck13, known for their first Lords of the Fallen tactical RPG. Currently in development, Lords of the Fallen 2 takes place 60 years after the events of the first game; it follows the aftermath of the Cleansed, as well as the ongoing struggle between two rival houses, the Gray and the Red. The story will be told simultaneously from the seven leading protagonists. The new title is being developed by Deck13, and will be published by 505 Games in November 2016.

"I like it, I could feel myself jump to my feet by the end" I love it I want it asap My taste is primarily action, action with a strong story, I think the Fallout series is very good in this regard. And its really nitty gritty gameplay, can't stand the bloated "fantasy-Arthouse" rpgs that pretty much fill the consoles since dlc on steam and such.(Pathfinder, surface etc) And thats ONLY if I literally FIND it in the store. Bad news, I got to break 5 console-games-on-5 to get that to happen. I hate the bloatedness. People who want high end action games/RPGs should vote KOTOR2, FO3:ACE or Oblivion. On a side note: I have played all of the FO games, so its not like I'm just a fanboy or something[Death receptor-mediated apoptosis of cardiac cells and myocardial remodeling by activated T cells]. We tried to emphasize the role of activated T cells in myocardial remodeling after a cardiac infarction. Myocardial infarcted rats received monoclonal anti-CD3 therapy. Anti-CD3 therapy protected the cardiac infarcted rat from cardiac hypertrophy. The effect of anti-CD3 on this protection depended on the severity of the myocardial infarction, the duration of the therapy and the onset of the therapy after the infarction. Apoptosis of myocardial cells was induced by the activated T cells in the myocardial infarcted rats. The myocardial infarction after anti-CD3 therapy was attenuated by the activation of Fas-mediated apoptosis of myocardial cells. When Fas
