“We are very excited to bring to life the realism of our engine with FIFA 22,” said Juan Sánchez, Creative Director at EA SPORTS. “Our motion capture team, through their hard work and dedication, delivered the highest amount of data from the highest intensity, real-life football matches we have captured, and we are very happy to introduce it to the world. This will be an important part to the feel and experience in our game, as well as to the overall visual fidelity of the game.” EA SPORTS and IMG have captured 70 hours of motion capture and filming data from several top players, including Real Madrid’s Xabi Alonso, FC Bayern Munich’s Javi Martínez, Manchester United’s Marcus Rashford, Real Madrid’s Sergio Ramos, Juventus’ Leonardo Bonucci and Ronaldo, Borussia Dortmund’s Ilkay Gündogan, Barcelona’s Lionel Messi, Mesut Özil, Gianluigi Buffon, Paulo Dybala, Francesco Totti and Fernando Torres. The data, previously undisclosed, was captured at IMG’s flagship National Football Training Center in Chula Vista, Calif., and at IMG's Orlando, Fla. facility, and directly reflects players' movements, tackles and on-ball behavior in a game setting. "It's been incredible to witness a global network of data creators delivering an unbelievable amount of data from around the world," says Simon Gray, IMG's chief executive and sporting director. "FIFA is one of the most highly anticipated games of the year and the players and their exhaustive work in getting ready for it have been exemplary. This new generation of motion capture data will be transformative for the future of eSports, the broadcast and live sports industries and ultimately help real-life football fans." We have also seen 25 hours of data from an international tournament from the National Football Scouting Combine, held in Indianapolis. This new insight into player behavior in a game setting will enrich not only FIFA 22's in-game actions, but also the broadcast and media industry as well. "This is a technology that will fundamentally change how we watch games in the years to come and given the advancements made over the last couple of years we've seen with the introduction of the VFX team to bring the heat, the advanced AI that would allow players to react on

We've seen plenty of sound effects for Game Boy games, and it looks like it's time for a Game Boy game to step up their sound effects game. With the recent release of Sonic Colors -- the 3rd game in the Sonic series -- we figured it's time to check in with the sonic state of the games' Sound Devices and see how they're doing. We'll bring you our findings in the coming weeks. In the meantime, peruse this list of Game Boy Mini sound effects and visit Sonic Retro for more stuff.--- abstract: 'Observation-driven forecasting of laser-induced plasma waves in liquid and solid dielectric are a fundamental tool for the design of short-pulse lasers with high-energy conversion efficiency. By means of a newly developed ray optics coupled plasma code, we show that in this laser-physical interaction nonlinear wave optics plays a dominant role in determining the plasma energy conversion efficiency.' ---

The short pulse laser-plasma interaction has recently become of considerable theoretical interest $[1,2]$, with the development of highly efficient laser-driven particle accelerators $[3]$. The laser pulse propagates through a liquid or solid dielectric medium and induces the formation of a capillary wave structure (plasma wave) due to a balance of the nonlinearities of the radiation pressure and the electron inertia forces. The

The FIFA experience is more than just footy. FIFA brings fans closer to the emotion and drama of real-world football than ever before in a comprehensive, authentic sports simulation that spans all 32 official FIFA Clubs. This year's FIFA model has been updated to include a more compelling, varied and realistic experience in every mode. Players will now also have the ability to change the direction of the ball while sprinting, posing a greater challenge to defenders, while new challenges in Career Mode allow a player to experience an entirely different playing style. FIFA's innovative AI is further enhanced to make each player smarter, making the game more interactive and unpredictable. It's the most immersive, authentic and complete football experience. This season, FIFA 22 introduces a new Real Team Snap System, which has players in possession of the ball pause their animation, move into position and then put their foot down in a more natural and realistic way. FIFA 22 also includes a brand new system for shooting and goalkeeping, where players can now jump in the air after a shot and perform a more precise and stylish sliding action to score from a tough angle. *Game available subject to local law or terms and
