

“Nearly every football game on the market today feels the same,” said Aaron Doster, executive producer on FIFA, EA SPORTS and lead gameplay engineer on the FIFA video game series. “We’ve done this for 20 years, but we never really asked ‘what’s possible?’ We wondered ‘what if we could bring that kind of real-life data into the game and let players experience it in gameplay?’” Both “tag me” (the ability to see other players’ actions on the pitch) and “tackles & interceptions” (when a defender intercepts a pass) were made more meaningful and effective in FIFA 22 thanks to data from the player motion capture suits, which is processed by EA Sports using the power of “HyperMotion Technology.” “HyperMotion Technology is all about making everything in the game feel like it’s made of rubber,” said Doster. “For all our gamers, we want it to look and play like a real football game.” HyperMotion Technology is also used to power the new “dribbling” system, which includes features such as an enhanced ball control system that makes players feel more fluent on the ball. FIFA 22 will feature deeper moments than the previous versions of the game, which will be complemented by more polish. “For FIFA to stand out in the open world of PC gaming, it has to have more depth to the game, and with that, you can’t just release it and be happy. You have to be absolutely certain it’s ready to go,” said Alex Garden, technical director for FIFA. “This year we’ve really worked on those deeper moments, and that’s going to be really important to the overall feeling of the game.” With the influx of more realistic data, gameplay has never looked better. Shots are more dynamic, more realistic and closer to what you see in real-life, and the ball feels more realistic, reacts better, and transitions from bounce to touch better than ever before. As gameplay evolved in FIFA 11, FIFA 12 and FIFA 13, motion capture was also adapted. This led to the game becoming more interactive, and now players can control their own ball, which gives them

What's new in Fifa 22:

- RACE TO GLORY – Quest for The Underdog Award. You’ll have a new scoring system that rewards repeatability and approachability. As you play League, Championship, or European cup matches, your outstanding performances (called Deserved Goals in-game) will be rewarded with The Underdog Award. Collect enough of these awards, and you’ll unlock the Underdog Award trophy in-game.
- FIFA 22 will feature 3 new modes. FIFA Ultimate Team is the ultimate team mode, where you create and manage your own team full of in-game characters. FIFA Ultimate Draft lets you manage your virtual dream team. Finally, The Journey lets you control the creation and growth of your club. Also in The Journey, we’ve made it easier than ever to transfer a player from the premier league to your club - thanks to a new upload tool. Those previously too expensive players are now cheap and the market is pushing them hard, and we’ve made a safer (and more intuitive) purchase of those players.
- A free ‘Ultimate Team Expansion’ will launch this autumn that will be free to FUT Season Ticket owners, giving you 100 minutes of gameplay to put the new added content through its paces. The first month will be available for trial. “Free” also comes with a free Manager style tutorial and a number of other updates and improvements to Ultimate Team. Players who do not have a Season Ticket will still be able to purchase the expansion pack.
