Whether you are dealing with a corporate site, a university network, a home LAN, or an ISP: a public proxy server is a must. This tool will let you control how you get the information you want on the Internet. If you have a dial-up Internet connection, it's possible to set up a dial-up modem, but you usually need to also have a standard modem-to-modem connection. Create a separate dial-up account for your proxy (or a special local access account) and log in using that account. Open your browser and configure your browser (e.g. Netscape Navigator) to use your proxy. This is usually as easy as visiting the "Tools" menu in the browser and selecting "Connectivity", and selecting the proxy as your default choice. You can use the web browser for more than just browsing the Internet, you can also use it for creating "temporary" accounts on the web sites you want to access. You can also use the proxy server to bypass certain types of firewalls. It will provide access to hundreds of web sites and you can use it with as many as 20 simultaneous users. What You Can Do With the Lite Proxy Server Serial Key You can use it to: access hundreds of web sites (via the Internet), and from more than 2 sites.
