What's New in the Photoshop CC?

Adelphia/Martin DSL Connection Issue Hello All, For the life of me I can't seem to connect to the Internet using my Adelphia/Martin DSL connection. I'm on a P4M890 with PPO service. Once connected I can see the Adelphia's IP address. I can use the Adelphia's web console to set the username and password and the time settings. I use the web console to grab the MAC address of my adapter and use that as the router's when trying to connect. I can't get a dial tone though and I've tried a number of things, nothing works. I can even successfully dial my standard line with the Adelphia modem but I can't get the router to dial out. The line is working and no squawks are generated on the line. Any ideas? Re: Adelphia/Martin DSL Connection Issue Haaar, Looking at your descriptions in your first post, it seems you are trying to connect your remote device to your cable modem, rather than to your DSL modem, where it is supposed to go. If this is the case, then it seems you are using PPPoE not PPPoA. Both protocols will use the standard ADSL modem in your case, but PPPoE will pass information about the phone number you are dialing over the modem connection. See this site for more info. Re: Adelphia/Martin DSL Connection Issue Adelphia's have a telephone number where you dial up. See the site for more details. Re: Adelphia/Martin DSL Connection Issue Ok...you are correct, I did go to that site and it does explain that. But in the process of dialing my ISP's phone number I can hear a dial tone and then the internet goes out, while I'm still connected. Everything appears to be working great...but no dial tone. I figured it was more of an ISP issue (my connection may be unreliable) so I went over to the Adelphia website to complain. Re: Adelphia/Martin DSL Connection Issue When you connected, did you log in to the internet service provider website that you are using? If so, are you entering the connection on a separate computer or on the same computer you are currently using? The ISP's website will not connect unless you are logged in.
