We are a group of four gamers with different tastes in life, stories and games that want to tell you what we experience in playing these and a bunch of other games. And we like to write about them too. Dedicated to #DodgerTalk about baseball, baseball video games and baseball being cool. Posts navigation We are a video gaming enthusiast site, with a primary focus on indie games. Our content ranges from reviews and guides to discussion and interviews, if you are looking for game guides check our wikis and wikis for game guides. Some of our editorials are honest impressions, some are sponsored, but all are high quality content. Our intention is to help gamers find games worth playing.

Q: Why do @Html.RadioButtonFor() names differ from the underlying value? Why do names of @Html.RadioButtonFor() and the underlying model values differ? I am expecting the names of the RadioButtons to be the underlying model property names. For example, if there are two model properties like this:

public class Student { public string FirstName { get; set; } public string LastName { get; set; } }

 and the view is as follows:

@model List Student Information Details for @Model.Count() Students

@foreach (var student in Model) { student.FirstName, "student", student.FirstName == user.Student.FirstName? "selected" :
    string.Empty)"> @student.FirstName @if (student.FirstName!= user.Student.FirstName) {* } } I get this: If I change the names of the first and second radio buttons to match (e.g. @Html.RadioButtonFor(x

Strongloween: The Escape License Code & Keygen

Don't make the mistakes of the past when you can stop to think. A life in service will only lead to a life in slavery. It is time to strike a bold new path and leave your old life behind. You will have a new life ahead. They will have to respect you. They will have to fear you. They will have to bring your every wish to their king. It is time to own a slave. It is time to be a King. It is time to be free. Welcome to the exciting life of a slave owner. With a selection of a king, princess, queen, farmer, concubine, sheikh, general, and many others, you'll choose your master. Have fun and good luck! Read the rules, these are pretty short. You won't be able to break the rules without losing the game. If you got there from then you are playing the old version! Meaning your name and country/location will not be saved. Also we can not open requests from random external links. One Life A Slave Social Contest: So you made the choice to be a slave?

Congratulations! You can now choose the look and the clothes for your slave. Even a fat sim that takes at least one generation to make, you can dress them how you want. Create the look you want or like how others have dressed their slaves and start your adventure as a slave owner. You can also invite a friend to play with you or join a game if you want. Not All Equal PvP Contest: Did you like both of the contests above? Then you should play the new Not All Equal! In this mode you can name one of your slaves "Master" and you can decide what slaves you want to get and which slaves you want to keep. In the game mode you can open up your entire choice with the "Master" so that your slaves don't have to be the same. This allows you to play the game however you like and enjoy your slavery as you see fit. To be the most special of all your slaves you can even hold the title of "Master". If you want to play with a friend or just invite a friend with you then that's alright. You can play this mode together with

▲ The story of this game is about "Moon run", who comes to the Earth on a bridge using a rocket, but he went to Mars first, he went to Mars and then he came to Earth. Game "Kosmo Laika : Guide to Space" Online Gameplay: ▲ Multiplayer: You can play in "Warp" mode, but it is very simple to play with 3 people online. ▲ There are several new missions, including "Rocket" and "Lunar Landing"!! Game "Kosmo Laika : Guide to Space" Screenshots: Isolation and molecular analysis of acetoin and 2,3-butanediol dehydrogenases in Clostridium propionicum strains. Acetoin and 2,3-butanediol dehydrogenases in Clostridium propionicum have been purified and separated by a two-step procedure. The purification technique has a yield of 59.4% for the first step and 47.7% for the second. The apparent molecular mass of acetoin dehydrogenase is approximately 175 kDa, whereas the molecular mass of 2,3-butanediol dehydrogenase is 65 kDa. The isoelectric point of both enzymes is pH 9.0, and their optimum pH is 8.0. When cross-reacting substrate inhibition is observed, the apparent $K(m)$ and $V(max)$ values are 4.6 mM and 9.0 nmol/min/mg protein, respectively, for acetic acid, and are 0.44 mM and 0.9 nmol/min/mg protein, respectively, for 2,3-butanediol. The apparent $K(m)$ and $V(max)$ values for acetic acid are 10.5 mM and 2.46 nmol/min/mg protein, respectively, for 2,3-butanediol. The electrophoretic pattern of 2,3-butanediol dehydrogenase is also distinct from that of acetic acid dehydrogenase. Q: How do I make my max-width work with body and other classes? I'm creating a website for a flash-based virtual classroom website. I'm fairly new to this, as you can tell by my question... I have a body that uses the `class.bluelab_container` to make the container 80% wide. That container looks like this: `.blu`

, and MTM2, also known as WISC2) interacts with ATM, Nbs1 and Mre11 and recruits them to double-strand breaks (DSB) sites. After DSBs are detected, ATM, Nbs1 and Mre11 bind to DSB sites with the help of RAD50 and MDC1 and form a trans-lesion-DNA (T-loop) complex, which activates the canonical NHEJ pathways and allows the resection of the DSB (Figure 6{ref-type="fig"}).Figure 6A Structure-Guided Hybrid Fragment Analysis Methodological Scheme for the Quantitative Detection of DSBs in Drug-Tolerant and Drug-Sensitive CellsAfter recruitment of Nbs1 and Mre11 to a DSB site, other repair proteins can bind to the DSB site(A) A DSB is recognized by Nbs1 and Mre11. ATM phosphorylates p53 and changes its tertiary structure. After binding to p53, ATM recruits MDC1 to the damage sites.(B) Fluorescently labeled Nbs1 and Mre11 monomers are used to bind the target DNA. Pulsed laser light (488 nm) is used to generate a DSB in the DNA strand. Upon photo cleavage of the target DNA, the labeled Nbs1 and Mre11 monomers fall off from the broken DNA strand and form dimers.(C) Hybrid fragment analysis by fragment size on a Picochip(I) Hybrid fragment analysis and a baseline are set to the DNA standards. These standards consist of a 50 bp DNA ladder, a 6 kb DNA fragment, and a 1 Mb DNA fragment that represents whole chromosomal DNA.(II) The baseline and the DNA standards are set to the flow channel. An aliquot of intercalated dye-labeled DNA (fragments labeled with different colors) derived from the target chromosome is mixed with the standards, and these complexes are injected into the stream.(III) The fluorescent intensity of the samples in the stream gradually increases as the unlabeled DNA (DNA degraded by nuclease enzyme) and fluorescently labeled DNA (undegraded DNA) are separated. The concentration of the unlabeled DNA can be calculated from the fluorescent intensity.(IV) The standard curve of the measurement is obtained by plotting the concentration of the unlabeled DNA against the fluorescence intensity.(V

The Persians believe that the dead were always immortal. According to the legend, their palace of Sippar was built by King Naram-Sin and his son Naram-Acha (also known as King Achaemenes) using the outcast bodies of defeated enemy kings that had died years ago. In those days, the King of Persia was considered to be a living god. Long after the death of king Naram-Sin, King Achaemenes became King Artaxerxes I of Persia. A year after his death, he ordered the construction of the necropolis of Darius I on the banks of the Tigris. There, he was buried and his body was consumed by the hot summer sun over 400 years later. In the following years, other bodies were consumed by the rising ground, turning it into a massive necropolis - the original forest of kings. A little story, coming from the distant future... Explore the necropolis. Get in touch with the dead and make them live again. The seeds you help to plant will eventually grow and create your army, which can be used in battles to defeat your enemies. ?Intuitive and easy to play - scroll around, use the left and right arrow keys to move, and then tap in the middle to start ?Strategy game with a rich tech tree - unlock and upgrade buildings, troops and structures in exchange for points gained from destroying enemy defenses ?Huge map with many scenarios - experience the exciting graphics and the rich gameplay in 16 scenarios ?Play locally with two friends - fight together against the AI ?Watch the full HD graphics in original quality ?Play for free ?Hardcore gameplay in bite-sized 2-3 minute episodes ?Choose from many units, including archers and phalangites ?Experience great pixel-art graphics ?Champion of kings ?Master the synergy between units - your units can combine into powerful combos ?Units are friendly to other friendly units ?Immerse in a living and breathing story - the Dead King is trying to kill the living, meaning he is not always friendly ?Don't hesitate to fight for your life Whats New: ?UI improvements ?Reduced memory usage ?Minor bugfixes The Persians believe that the dead were always immortal.
