the nutcracker became the first ballet to be put on in st. petersburg, russia, on 2 november 1892. it was performed there for the first time with a russian libretto written by aleksandr serov. it was choreographed by vaslav nijinsky. the first production of the nutcracker was a failure. it was poorly performed and poorly received. despite its poor opening performance, it was quickly established as the primo balletto of the russian ballet. according to alexei ratner, nijinsky's choreography was based on a new, free expression of dance, free of old-fashioned traditions, and was based on the philosophy of the time: the unity of the arts. the nutcracker ballet, being an artistic creation, did not include a conflict between the arts, and was not based on any kind of rule or system. the ballet was first given in the bolshoi theatre in moscow on 2 november 1892. the first soloist was the student of the ballet school, the young vaslav nijinsky, who had created the role of the nutcracker, and later danced the role in the west. since his adolescence, my favorite performance of the nutcracker has been valery gergiev's with the mariinsky ballet. the performance was given in january 1995 at the théâtre royal de la monnaie, brussels, with the mariinsky ballet, conducted by valery gergiev. the 1927 version, the first to be recorded, was performed by the ballet russe de monte carlo under the direction of serge diaghilev. in the opening scene, clara, the heroine of the story, is alone in the snow and is discovered by a little mouse, which takes her inside the house to its mistress. the mouse, a tiny little mouse with enormous eyes, immediately goes to work on the nutcracker's arm and you can actually hear the crunching as it breaks it off.

The second part of the manuscript describes the sound aspects of The Nutcracker. Tchaikovsky sketched his composition almost without a single note. Drosselmeyer's motif is derived from his own walking bass, which Gounod had given him as a present. Omit the old-fashioned motif, Gounod wrote with his own hand in the manuscript: This is the motif from my Ave Maria [19] The fourth part (2) of the manuscript shows the first version of the children's chorus. This was replaced by the version given in the sketch book and in the conductor's copy. The manuscript also makes clear that he continued to work on the Liebestod until May 1894. Tchaikovsky's choreography for the performance at the Bolshoi Ballet on 22 January 1915 was the last work he directed himself. The sketches in his sketch book for the production of that version of the ballet were conducted by one of Tchaikovsky's last students, P.I. Tsyuklinskaya, to whom he had entrusted the task of copying the sketches to facilitate the performance. On 26 January/12 February Tchaikovsky wrote in his sketchbook about the blocking: I. MAT stands out for its richness in colours and details: cracking, salting and the typical excrescences of concrete embellish the collection, bringing it to life. The visible and concrete signs of the past world of the circus which survived into late 19th-century Russia are an important part of the canvas, however, it was only in the 20th-century that the fragments of post-NAP periods became prominent. 5ec8ef588b
