Here's the killer feature that should make most people consider switching from Photoshop: you can activate Photoshop without connection to the Internet. When you install or upgrade Photoshop, the distribution software on the disc is able to validate your license and send an activation code directly to Photoshop. If you ever want to deactivate, you have to visit the Adobe website and enter your license key and product key. That's it. No Internet connection is required. After having used Photoshop for years, I think it is the greatest program ever created. I love its many features, and I'm even thinking about buying my first home soon because I want to retire there. I still run it on my iMac on a 19". Yes, this is what I use. If you are trying to look for a quick and easy way to make great looking composites, then keep away from Photoshop. In truth, this is not the best program for creating a photographic composites. In my opinion, it doesn't have the muscle to do it very well. There are other software packages out there that are much better for the task. If you need to make great looking prints, use Photoshop. If you need to create something artistic to hang on your wall, then use Photoshop. I have a friend who makes everything from posters to book covers, and everyone of them are made in Photoshop. I think you get the point. If you are a designer who needs Photoshop to do the job, then it is simple to see why you use what you use. If you are a professional photographer, then you would use an all-in-one package such as Adobe's, like Lightroom or Aperture. If you are just a casual snapshoter and want to do a little PC tinkering from time to time, then you should give it a look. If you belong on Facebook, then you've come to the right place. If you do belong on Facebook and are satisfied with the outdated package that you are using at the moment, then no, you don't need to download these updates.
